

Abstract

This study analyzes students' perceptions of e-learning platforms, specifically Grantley, Bangalore, using sentiment analysis techniques. The research investigates factors such as user interface, course content, engagement, and overall satisfaction with the platform. By evaluating students' experiences and sentiments, the study aims to provide insights into the effectiveness of e-learning tools and suggest improvements to enhance student engagement and educational outcomes.