

Abstract

This study examines the financial performance of Naga Limited (Foods), focusing on key financial metrics such as profitability, liquidity, and solvency. The study analyzes financial statements, ratios, and trends over time to assess the company's financial health and performance in the competitive food industry. The findings aim to offer strategic insights for improving financial stability and guiding decision-making for future growth.